The last film that I have seen about dragons was called Eragon, which was released last year. Eragon is an orphan boy from the Kingdom of Alagesia who finds a blue mystic stone sent by the beautiful princess Ariya. This mysterious stone is no ordinary stone but the last surviving egg of the dragon race. When the dragon is born, Eragon becomes its rider with the aim of setting the people of Alagesia free from its evil king Galbatoriz. With the help of the rebels, he fights the army of the tyrant king.

I really enjoyed this adventure film because there are some fascinating battle scenes and at the end, good overcomes evil, as it should always be.
